

Your Auction Donation Helps Your Fellow Members

The conference committee of the National Guardianship Association has been hard at work finalizing this year's speakers and activities. The committee is pleased to announce that NGA will once again hold its annual silent and live auctions at the National Conference on Guardianship at the Lexington Griffin Gate Marriott, October 12 – 15.

How are the NGA auction proceeds used?

The proceeds from this successful auction have always been very important to NGA and are specifically designated to provide scholarships to a worthy guardians (one for a family guardian, one for a public guardian, and one for a dedicated NGA volunteer) to attend the conference each year. Additionally, these funds allow NGA to support special projects outside of its normal budget.

The committee is seeking all types of donations, so please use your imagination!

Over the years, many talented NGA members have generously donated items they have made by hand, such as baby blankets, jewelry, photographs, scarves, and cards. Others have donated art, paintings, and electronics. State affiliates have joined the cause, donating special items from their states.

If you are creatively challenged, or don't have the time, the committee members can assist you! Contact info@guardianship.org with your questions or to request shopping help. There are many ways in which you can support this auction. Use the attached form to indicate how you want to help. Please keep in mind that heavy, bulky, fragile or perishable items may present packing and transportation difficulties for you and/or the purchasing member. Please provide the original packaging for your donated item(s) so that winners can easily take their purchases home.

Donations are fully tax deductible.

NGA is a not-for-profit IRS 501(c)3 organization and its tax identification number is 36-3591860. You will receive a receipt for your donations and for your purchases for tax purposes.
